

Speaker's Profile

-Masafumi Fukagawa-

Speaker's Name	Masafumi Fukagawa	Country	Japan
Organization	Tokai Univ. School of Medicine	Department	Division of Nephrology and Metabolism
Education	Until 1995: Research Fellow, Vanderbilt Univ. School of Medicine - Ph.D., Trainee, Univ. of Tokyo School of Medicine 1983: M.D., Univ. of Tokyo School of Medicine
Experience	2000-2009: Associate Professor, Director of the Division of Nephrology and Kidney Center, Kobe Univ. School of Medicine 2009-Present: Professor of Medicine and the Director of Division of Nephrology and Metabolism, Tokai Univ. School of Medicine, Isehara, Japan
Main Specific Publication	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Chaired a committee for Japanese Clinical Guidelines - Member of KDIGO Work Group on CKD-MBD global guidelines - International Editor of the CJASN - Editorial board member of the CJASN - Reviewer, Major international journals
Summary	From 2000 to 2009, Dr. Fukagawa was Associate Professor and Director of the Division of Nephrology and Kidney Center at Kobe University School of Medicine (Japan), where he established a new program and has trained numbers of medical students, residents and fellows from Japan and other Asian countries. And Dr. Fukagawa's major research interest is mineral metabolism, in which field he has published many clinical and basic papers. Thus, Dr. Fukagawa has been internationally recognized as a clinician, educator and investigator.			